FROM KINGPIN TO EDUCATOR

Senior Drug Agent Jeramy Ellison and former Drug Kingpin Margarito Flores Jr. will be teaching a one-day class educating law enforcement about the inner workings of the drug cartel and the tactics needed to locate, identify, and dismantle these criminal organizations. This class is designed to raise awareness and provide detailed insights into one of the most prolific drug operations in the country by a prior drug kingpin himself. Margarito and his twin brother began their narcotics career at the young age of 7, following their father and brother's footsteps while eventually taking over the family business. By the time they were 18 years old, the twins became millionaires and established themselves as major wholesale drug suppliers in Chicago and the surrounding areas. Their operations extended beyond borders as they became the main distributors for the Sinaloa cartel in the United States. They imported and distributed tons of illegal narcotics into major cities across the United States and Canada, utilizing various modes of transportation, including cars, semi tractor-trailers, boats, airplanes, passenger buses, submarines, container ships, go-fast boats, and even trains. Throughout their drug trafficking career, they facilitated the movement of over $3 billion worth of bulk US currency back to Mexico.

Margarito now aims to share his past experiences with law enforcement in a positive way and make a meaningful impact. The class is designed to educate officers on every aspect of the inner workings of the cartel, to include distribution logistics, routes, concealment methods in vehicles and houses, command structure, tactics used to elude LEO, and much more! The class will be full of engagement with open Q&A throughout the day, and lunch will be provided for free. This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity that you will not want to miss out on!

Margarito Flores Jr. - A Journey from Adversity to Redemption

Born in Chicago, Illinois, to immigrant parents, Margarito Flores Jr. experienced a tumultuous childhood. His father's incarceration during his early years and the absence of paternal guidance left a void in his life. However, little did Margarito know that his father's return would introduce him to a world that would shape his destiny.

Eager to reconnect with his father and learn from him, Margarito soon found himself unwittingly immersed in the drug trade. As his father resumed his illicit activities, Margarito and his twin brother became involved in cultivating, loading, and unloading drugs and money in concealed compartments. They gained firsthand experience in the intricate workings of the trade, adapting to the changing dynamics of the illicit market.

Their education in the drug trade continued when their father returned to Mexico, leaving them and their twin brother in the care of their older brother Armando, a drug kingpin involved in the cocaine trade. Guided by Armando, they transitioned from traditional schooling to mastering a different facet of the business.

Embracing their newfound roles, Margarito and his twin brother followed in their father and brother's footsteps, taking over the family business. By the time they were 18, they had become millionaires and established themselves as major wholesale drug suppliers in Chicago and the surrounding areas. Their operations extended beyond borders as they became the main distributors for the Sinaloa cartel in the United States. They imported and distributed tons of illegal narcotics into major cities across the United States and Canada, utilizing various modes of transportation, including cars, semi tractor-trailers, boats, airplanes, passenger buses, submarines, container ships, go-fast boats, and even trains. Throughout their lucrative drug trafficking career, they facilitated the movement of over $3 billion worth of bulk US currency back to Mexico.

In 2008, a life-altering epiphany struck Margarito and his brother. Fueled by a desire to protect their families and break free from the cycle of crime, they reached out to the government and made the decision to cooperate against the head of the Sinaloa cartel. Courageously turning themselves in, they embarked on a journey of redemption and justice. In 2015, they were sentenced to 14 years each for their crimes. Three years later, Margarito's brother testified against Mr. Guzmán in Brooklyn, New York, contributing to the dismantling of a powerful criminal organization. In 2020, they were finally released, eager to embrace a new chapter in their lives.

Now, Margarito seeks to share his captivating story to aid law enforcement in their ongoing battle against drug trafficking. With a firsthand understanding of the inner workings of the trade, he aims to shed light on its complexities and dangers, while advocating for change and prevention. Margarito's journey is a testament to the power of transformation, resilience, and the pursuit of redemption.

Today, Margarito shares his story as a catalyst for change. With a profound understanding of the drug trade, he endeavors to assist law enforcement agencies in their battle against illicit narcotics. Through speaking engagements, consultations, and training programs, Margarito offers unique insights and firsthand knowledge to aid in the fight against drug trafficking and its devastating consequences.

Margarito serves as a testament to the transformative power of second chances and the resilience of the human spirit. His unwavering commitment to rebuilding his life and making a positive impact stands as an inspiration to all those who seek redemption and hope in the face of adversity.

Margarito now aims to share his past experiences with law enforcement in a positive way and make a meaningful impact. The class is designed to educate officers on every aspect of the inner workings of the cartel to include distribution logistics, routes, concealment methods in vehicles and houses, command structure, tactics used to elude LEO and much more! Twin drug dealers modelled business on McDonald's and helped bring down El Chapo

Twins dubbed by some as the most prolific drug dealers in history have said they modelled part of their business success on McDonald's. Pedro and Margarito Flores also played a hand in bringing down drug kingpin El Chapo

Between 2005 and 2008, the Flores brothers and their crew operated a Chicago-based wholesale distribution cell for the Sinaloa Cartel and a rival drug trafficking organization controlled by Arturo Beltran Leyva, receiving on average 1,500 to 2,000 kilograms of cocaine per month. Approximately half of this cocaine was distributed to the Flores' customers in the Chicago area, while the other half was distributed to customers in Columbus, Cincinnati, Detroit, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C. and Vancouver, among other cities. In total, the brothers admitted to facilitating the transfer of approximately $1.8 billion of drug proceeds from the United States to Mexico, primarily through bulk cash smuggling.

Margarito Flores Jr. and his twin brother, Pedro Flores, once were the biggest drug traffickers in Chicago, importing a ton of cocaine into the country every month.

Over the years, the Flores twins brought in 60 tons or more, authorities say — and sent more than $1.8 billion in cash back to Mexico to pay for those drugs, putting them among El Chapo's biggest customers.
