Subject: Well Water Testing

Brazoria County – A Proclamation for well water testing was signed today Friday, June 10, 2016 by County Judge Matt Sebesta. The Proclamation provides that residents affected by the flooding of the Brazos River, Oyster Creek and other tributaries in Brazoria County may have their water wells tested. This includes residents living within areas of concern which could also have possible contamination.

Residents that have been affected by flood waters or who live in the areas of concern due to the recent flooding may obtain testing materials from the Brazoria County Water Lab. The Brazoria County Water Lab will waive the testing fee for samples provided by affected residents.

Residents must provide their address, which must fall within the determined locations affected by the flooded areas within Brazoria County. To obtain instructions and water collection supplies go to the Brazoria County Water Lab at 409 East Orange, Angleton, TX 77515. Water from wells must be collected using a sample container provided by the Brazoria County Water Lab. Instructions will be provided from the lab on collecting water samples.
